

REGTECH DATA SUMMIT 2023

Data Modernization under the Financial Data Transparency Act

Passage of the Financial Data Transparency Act (FDTA) marks a new chapter in the adoption of regulatory technology that begins in 2023, launching an era for innovation and modernization in financial services. The FDTA is a revolutionary new law that is the most substantial reform to data authorities for the financial services sector in a generation. The FDTA will spur RegTech innovation to address regulatory challenges in financial services and create new opportunities to harmonize reporting requirements, reduce the private sector’s regulatory burden, and enhance transparency and accountability.

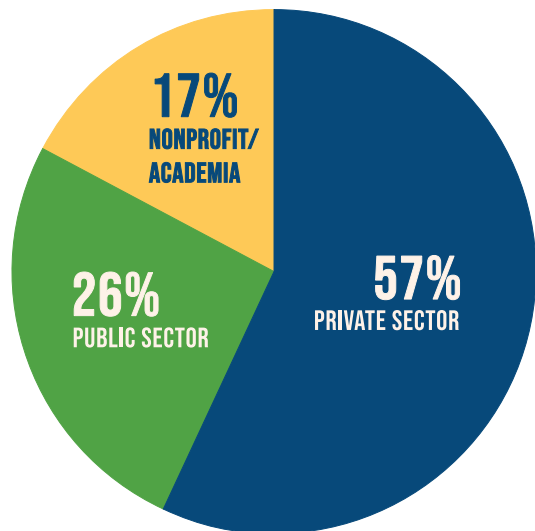

The Data Foundation’s hybrid RegTech23 Data Summit in Washington, D.C., presented by Donnelley Financial Solutions (DFIN), will focus on how federal regulators, regulated entities, RegTech and data companies, and data transparency advocates can work together to implement the FDTA and realize its full potential.
